

We Are In Changing Times...

New energies have been coming into the planet for some years now. Their vibration is different to the ones we knew before, therefore they are changing the rules. Things don't work as they did before. These energies are creating a new reality, of power, truth and compassion. We need to understand how to function in this new energy system. My latest book Stargate 2012: Recovering the Power for Earth's Imminent Ascension, says: "You have excuses or you have power". Illuminating a new way for humanity, in which we need to increase our light. Only when we bring our dark areas to the light – excuses – will they be resolved and we will truly shine and serve goodness. The book also gives a very detailed list of how to live with the changes, and how to live life when all the rules you knew are falling apart.

As the new energies go deeper into human consciousness they are bringing a shift so we do a crucial work that has been pending: placing our spiritual realization at the top of our priority list. That shift is a shift in love. A higher love so we graduate as humanity. This higher love will mainly be expressed as true compassion. Different to the limited dependant compassion people have lived here without their power awakened.

As I lived in and worked with energies in Mayan Territory for the last ten years I was taken to a new understanding of our world. I was able to unlock Mayan energy codes for humanity's shift of consciousness at this time. I present all those revelations in that book and seminars. And most important I bring the connection with the new energies so people can understand and experience a great shift in their lives before 2012. This allows people to hold a level of power and light now that can influence their lives in the most powerful ways.

We need to do the pending work, move from living from fear to acting in love.

Shifting from dependency of external powers to embody again our true spiritual power;

We have to go inside and claim our lost power from our dark side acknowledging that we will only be truly good people when all our actions bring good. This level of illumination is what will change the earth and our lives. And it requires a rising of our vibration. As my book The Violet Light – The Power That Changes Everything mentions, "The way you vibrate determines what things you attract to your life.... Therefore it determines your karma and your destiny."

The new energies are bringing a new paradigm, one of high vibration. Everything that is not based on love and truth will collapse. So many marriages are ending, people are in personal crises, many are changing careers, others are moving to another part of the world, all following their inner voice that speaks louder than ever: "Follow your passion" there lies the truth and the path of joy for you and in your service to the world.
